What Catholics Believe About Halloween

Is Halloween really a pagan holiday—or is it deeply Christian? In this episode of What Catholics Believe, Dr. Ben Akers explains the Catholic roots of Halloween, its connection to All Saints' Day and All Souls' Day, and how Catholics can celebrate it faithfully. Discover the history of trick-or-treating, the dangers of the occult, the meaning behind costumes, and even the Catholic perspective on vampires and zombies.

Eternal Rest

We all have very real questions about death. What happens when we die? What does Scripture teach about death? How do we prepare for the life to come? Explore the mystery of death, dying, and everlasting life through Eternal Rest, a new offering of the Augustine Institute.

7 Ways to Make a Holy Hour

(Bl. Archbishop Fulton J. Sheen)

'An Hour of Companionship'

Bl. Archbishop Fulton J. Sheen made a Holy Hour every day of his priesthood—as he promised on his ordination day. He explains the importance of his time with Jesus in his autobiography, Treasure of Clay, calling those 60 minutes "an hour of companionship" and explaining that it is a way "to grow more and more into his likeness." "Looking at the Eucharistic Lord for an hour transforms the heart in a mysterious way as the face of Moses was transformed after his companionship with God on the mountain." he writes.

"Something happens to us similar to that which happened to the disciples at Emmaus." he adds. "On Easter Sunday afternoon when the Lord met them, he asked why they were so gloomy. After spending some time in his presence, and hearing again the secret of spirituality—'The Son of Man must suffer to enter into his Glory'—their time with him ended and their "hearts were on fire.'"

Here are seven easily implemented tips from Archbishop Fulton Sheen himself for your own hour with Jesus.

1. It's ok if it's not easy—or you fall asleep. In his book, Archbishop Sheen recalls a Holy Hour at St. Roch in Paris: "I entered the church about three o'clock in the afternoon, knowing that I had to catch a train for Lourdes two hours later. There are only about ten days a year in which I can sleep in the daytime; this was one. I knelt down and said a prayer of adoration, and then sat up to meditate and immediately went to sleep. I woke up exactly at the end of one hour. I said to the Good Lord: 'Have I made a Holy Hour?' I thought (my) angel said: "Well, that's the way the Apostles made their first Holy Hour in the Garden, but don't do it again.'"
2. Sometimes making that hour involves intrepidness—and an extended time frame. "One difficult Holy Hour I remember occurred when I took a train from Jerusalem to Cairo. The train left at four o'clock in the morning; that meant very early rising. On another occasion in Chicago, I asked permission from a pastor to go into his church to make a Holy Hour about seven o'clock in the evening for the church was locked. He then forgot that he let me in, and I was there for about two hours trying to find a way to escape. Finally I jumped out of a small window and landed in the coal bin. This frightened the housekeeper, who finally came out to my aid."
3. Go where your schedule allows. He began his holy hour habit during the day or evening, but then priestly demands prompted a new time: "I made the Hour early in the morning, generally before Holy Mass."
4. Be ready to meet Christ! "The purpose of the Holy Hour is to encourage deep personal encounters with Christ. The holy and glorious God is constantly inviting us to come to Him, to hold converse with Him, to ask for such things as we need and to experience what a blessing there is in fellowship with Him," he writes. "...Neither theological knowledge nor social action alone is enough to keep us in love with Christ unless both are preceded by a personal encounter with him...I have found that it takes some time to catch fire in prayer. This has been one of the advantages of the daily Hour...It is not so brief as to prevent the soul from collecting itself and shaking off the multitudinous distractions of the world. Stirring before the Presence is like a body exposing itself before the sun to absorb its rays. Silence in the Hour is a tête-à-tête with the Lord. In those moments, one does not so much pour out written prayers, but listening takes its place. We do not say: 'Listen, Lord, for Thy servant speaks,' but 'Speak, Lord, for Thy servant heareth.'"
5. Await being taught. "The Hour, too, became a magister and teacher, for although before we love anyone we must have a knowledge of that person, nevertheless, after we know, it is love that increases knowledges. Theological insights are gained not only from the two covers of a treatise, but from two knees on a prie-dieu before a tabernacle."
6. Encourage others to make one too. "Finally, making a Holy Hour every day constituted for me one area of life in which I could preach what I practiced," he reflects. "I very seldom in my life preached fasting in a righteous kind of way, for I always found fasting extremely difficult, but I could ask others to make the Hour, because I had made it."
7. Stick with it, for such a habit only grows. "When first ordained and a student at the Catholic University in Washington, I would never go to class without climbing the few stairs to the chapel in Caldwell Hall to make a tiny act of love to Our Lord in the Blessed Sacrament. Later, at the University of Louvain in Belgium, I would make a visit to Our Lord in every single church I passed on the way to class. When I continued graduate work in Rome and attended the Angelicum and Gregorian, I would visit every church en route from the Trastevere section where I lived. This is not so easy in Rome, for there are churches on almost every corner so that you may pray to get across the street; the church on the other corner is to thank God that you made it," he writes.

Later as a teacher at the Catholic University in Washington, I arranged to put a chapel immediately at the entrance of the front door of my home. This was in order that I might never come in or go out without seeing the sanctuary lamp as a summons to adore the Heart of Christ at least for a few seconds. I tried to be faithful to this practice all during my life, and even now in the apartment in New York where I live, the chapel is between my study and my bedroom. This means that I can never move from one area of my small apartment to another without at least a genuflection and a small ejaculation to our Lord in the Blessed Sacrament.
